Hunting and wildlife is a passion for everyone on Omatako

For the past 28 years, your hosts Johan and Elfie Kotze, owners of Omatako Hunting Trails, have been personally involved in supervising and running an operation that is extremely close to them.

Born Namibians and raised on farms, their love for wildlife and hunting allowed them to move from cattle farming to wildlife, which became their passion.

“We believe that hunting is a tool of conservation, where old mature animals need to be removed. We follow ethical and sportsman-like hunting methods where all hunting is done on foot, thereby giving our clients the ultimate intimate contact with wildlife.”

Hunting is done in the central and northwestern parts of Namibia, 1h30 north of the capital city, Windhoek.

Omatako Ranch is privately owned by our family and is the main hunting area (15 000 ha or 40 000 acres), which is part of the Ombotozu conservancy, totaling more than 800 000 acres. We also have the rights to hunt on 63 000 ha (155 000 acres) of nearby open land.

Most of the hunting is done on Omatako, which has 36 huntable game species available. If need be, depending on the circumstances, one can also hunt in the conservancy with permission of the owner.

The advantage of hunting with Omatako is that one saves a lot of time traveling between hunting areas and of course you’re not restricted to hunting quotas. On the hunt you will be guided by a team of PH’s, including myself and Johan Jr. If more PH’s are required, we make use of a freelance PH who is familiar with the hunting area.

Our hunting season officially starts on the 1st of February until the end of November, for rifle hunting.

Namibia is one of the only countries in Africa that has a medal and minimum scoring system. The latter protects the hunter from shooting animals that do not make the minimum score, and which could not be exported. The former inspires hunters to bag a really great trophy.

Here on Omatako Hunting Trails you can expect to shoot 90% gold medal trophies. We pride ourselves in top game genetics, with a number of trophies in the Namibia Top 10.

Rest assured that the whole team of Omatako Hunting Trails will not only make your stay a memorable one, but the trip of a lifetime!
